A photograph of a whole watermelon and two slices of watermelon. The whole watermelon is on the left, showing its characteristic green and dark green striped rind. To its right are two slices of watermelon. One slice is a wedge shape, and the other is a half-circle. Both slices show the bright red, juicy flesh and a thin layer of white pith just inside the green rind. The entire image is set against a plain white background and is enclosed within a thin green rectangular border.
